

October 21st SVIN will release their fourth studio album, Missionær, on vinyl, cd and download on PonyRec

SVIN is an unorthodox approach to instrumental music. They celebrate freedom in music and hails independence, love and limitless diversity in art!

In working with their fourth studioalbum Missionær SVIN left their old habits behind and turned their way of composing and playing upsidedown to reinvent themselves.

In December 2015 they travelled to Iceland to record at the legendary Sundlaugin Studio, established by Sigur Rós. Over the course of 10 intense days, the band went into symbiosis with the grand Icelandic nature and recorded the most melodic and epic work till this date, inspired by recordings of both gushing waterfalls and repetitive machines.

Missionær is moving across the borderlands between abstract rock, drone-based folklore and ambient noise. Behind layers of polyrhythmic drums, floating keyboards, roaring saxophone and explosive guitar they have made room for airy, meditating melodies and circulating motifs.

Their debut Heimat from 2011, Secretly We Are Gay from 2013 and their latest selftitled album from 2015 made an extremely positive impression on the Danish and international music scene. Recent years they have been touring heavily, playing on festivals and clubs all over Europe and Russia.

In the fall of 2016 SVIN will go on a tour through Denmark and a 3 week tour through Europa where they will present the music from Missionær as well as new material.

September they will premiere the first single with a video by Blake Nicotine of the song, Færgen Ellen.

The music is magic — a repeating motif of clanging, chiming guitars and pounding percussion, punctuated by even more compulsive rhythmic patterns and the seething flow of poisonous riffs.

-No Clean Singing (USA)

The new album 'Svin' sees the band offering up a phenomenal and unrelenting barrage of psychedelic experimental music, bordering the lines of post-rock and experimental jazz. Svin demonstrate wonderful musical technique on their latest effort, one that excites and sometimes confounds in oddly enjoyable ways.

- 4/5 The Music Critic (UK)

"SVIN's music sure is strange, but damn is it well-executed and progressive as hell! The last few songs feature everything from krautrockish droning to mathy stadium rock with guitar solos, and when the crowd calls for another song the band plays a short noisy one with multiple breaks that are masterly timed betwixt the musicians. After the show's over, I'm both dazed and confused but in a really good way."

-Rockfreaks.net

SVIN - MISSIONÆR
Released on PonyRec

Engineer: Birgir Jón Birgisson
Mix & co-produced by: Anders Bach
Cover: Adi Zukanovic

Lars Bech Pilgaard: Guitar
Henrik Pultz Melbye: Tenorsax/clarinet
Adi Zukanovic: Keys
Thomas Eiler: Drums

www.svin-music.com

www.ponyrec.com